Hi Anil, Before we can proceed with your technical questions, I will need more information about your current Kendo UI subscription. I have therefore generated a sales lead, and you can expect our licensing specialists to contact you, or if you have any questions about obtaining a license for Kendo UI for Angular, feel free to open a separate thread. If your company has already purchased a license from another account, please contact the license holder and provide them with this link so they can add you as a licensed developer. If you need to purchase or renew your subscription, you can reach out to our product specialists on telarik-sales@progress.com. They will gladly assist you with finding both the answers to your questions and a subscription that best fits your needs. Once your account is associated with an active subscription, you can post your questions in a new support ticket or repost them here and we will reply within the guaranteed response time. On top of that, you will be able to use our products in your applications, will have access to the latest features and fixes within our products, and the full benefits of the respective support plan. The technical aspects of the specific scenario will be specified further, and we will do our best to provide a solution that is best suitable to the specific use case as a part of our paid support service that goes with the product license. Typically we are doing our best to address generic questions, related to the setup of our components regardless of whether the person asking the question is a licensed client. However, when the setup is scenario-specific, and the scenario is not generic enough to benefit the community, or further developer effort, time for investigation, or a specific custom implementation is required, we are closing the thread. If other members of the community are willing to help further, this is always appreciated. Regards, Dimitar Topalov Progress Telerik answered on 07 Dec 2011, 09:46 AM Hello Chris, Multiline JavaScript strings need a "\ " at the end of each line: `template: '#if (eventclusterid > 0) { # \ # } else { # \ # } #';` Other than that the code looks correct. Perhaps an easier approach is to use a function which returns the html: `template: '#= checkbox(eventclusterid, roleid) ' function checkbox(eventclusterid, roleid) { if (...) { return ' ' }`
